

A Cut ABOVE

Manhattan boasts many of the best plastic surgeons in the world. Here, we dissect the top docs whose plastic surgery work whispers, not shouts.

By Phebe Wahl

FACE-LIFT Dr. Andrew Jacono pioneered an advanced technique for a deep plane face-lift to firm drooping cheeks, jawline and neck for a natural rather than pulled look. 630 Park Ave., newyorkfacialplasticsurgery.com

BROWS Dr. Thomas Romo III is celebrated for his minimally invasive endoscopic eyebrow lift technique. He's even developed his own line of endoscopic instruments, which are now used worldwide. 135 E. 74th St., romoplasticsurgery.com

EYES Dr. Haideh Hirmand rebuilds the eye area using combinations of Restylane in the tear trough, microbeading of the lower lid and shape-preserving blepharoplasty techniques to turn back time. 1040 Park Ave., haidehhirmandmd.com

LIPS Dr. Steven Pearlman's cupid's bow technique ensures natural-looking full lips, not the "trout pout" overdone look. 521 Park Ave., mdface.com

NECK Dr. Michael White's kind bedside manner helps patients find individual solutions ranging from deep plane neck-lifts to less invasive liposuction and Botox of the neck. 800A Fifth Ave., drmatthewwhite.com

BREAST AUGMENTATION From "gummy bear" implants and teardrop implants to simple silicone or saline, Dr. Daniel Maman and Dr. Stafford Broumand customize a perfect fit with the help of state-of-the-art 3-D imaging. 740 Park Ave., plasticsurgeonsnyc.com

TUMMY Dr. Melissa Doft combines abdominoplasty with liposuction to contour the waist. As a mother of two, Doft understands that many patients desire a refreshing "mommy tweak" and also add a breast lift. 755 Park Ave., doftplasticsurgery.com

